

Quick guide for the first meeting with your partner teacher

After matching with your partner teacher, initiate a friendly conversation and plan your first meeting to set the basis of your future collaboration. We've created a handy table with guidelines to help you before, during and after this first meeting.

Before

- Set your calendar to the day and time you specified for the video call.
- Decide what you want to discuss during this first meeting. For example, what kind of learning experience do you want to have? Cultural exchange, SDG projects, creating solutions to real-world problems, or presenting a solution.
- Create an agenda with the points you want to discuss in the meeting.

During

- Enter the video call a few minutes before to verify a good internet connection.
- Show a cordial and respectful attitude during the meeting.
- Comment on what your interests and expectations are about the learning experience that you would like to collaborate on.
- Prepare a schedule for future coordination and the date when your collaboration learning experience begins and ends.
- Finalize agreements and next steps to start collaborating.

After

- Send an email with the agreements and the schedule of future meetings.
- If there is any inconvenience that prevents the progress of the project, immediately contact your partner teacher. Remember that it is a sign of respect and commitment to maintaining clear communication at all times.
